Product Audit

Identifying current issues and noting severity of the problem

User interviews

Understanding how current users are using the feature and identifying their pain points

Currently, team managers or administrators need to go to a team's specific sub teams page to view the relevant objects and user information, denying them a high level view of the information from the parent team itself.